Content and Structure

Content

Arrangement
The archive was roughly arranged in envelopes, folders and portfolios with many pages of letters and texts dispersed or missing. Some headings were written on the front of folders and envelopes. "But I have nearly all your letters since our deportation. There are so many it would take me weeks to find our correspondence from Canada of 1925, '26 and '27", Goldman wrote to Berkman in 1936. Most of the archive consists of correspondence, which has been arranged, starting with the four major correspondents Ballantine, Berkman, Heiner and Van Valkenburgh, followed by the others in alphabetical order, sometimes in groups, according to personal names rather than company or organization names. Another large part consisting of writings of Goldman and of others has been arranged, sometimes in groups, according to title, also in alphabetic order. Newspaper and magazine clippings concerning her lectures, articles and letters to the editor have been combined with other clippings in the chapter Documentation. Parts of the archive that were added after her death have been gathered in chapter Annex 1.
